BSG ENABLES MOBILE USERS TO ADD COLLECT CALL CHARGES TO PHONE BILL

Launch of Bill2Phone Mobile™ Collect addresses wireless industry need and makes accepting collect calls more convenient for cell phone users

Las Vegas – June 25, 2008 - BSG today announced at the American Public Communications Council (APCC), the launch of Bill2Phone Mobile™ Collect, an automated billing solution that enables cell phone users to add incoming collect call charges directly to their mobile telephone bill.

Unlike landlines, mobile phone numbers are typically blocked when collect call requests are made to them because most operators have no automated billing mechanism to charge the recipient. Those operators that could connect callers to wireless subscribers required the recipient to pay for the call via a credit card. In an increasingly mobile society, with more than 260 million mobile devices currently in use, the ability to charge collect calls to mobile phone subscribers is critical. BSG's new solution enables operator service providers to connect callers that would normally be blocked because recipients were only available via a mobile phone.

"We see thousands of collect call requests to wireless numbers that get blocked every month," said Milton Volz, President of American Roaming Network. "BSG is supporting a need that has been overlooked by the wireless industry for years."

With over 23 years experience in meeting the needs of operator service providers and a keen insight into the call flows and processes for all forms of telecommunications billing, BSG is uniquely suited to deliver a mobile billing option for our mobile customers. The Bill2Phone Mobile™ Collect solution also enables operator service providers to deal with a single source for all their billing and payment needs.

“Opening up a convenient payment mechanism for mobile users is a natural progression for the telecom industry,” said Greg Carter, CEO of BSG. “We’re making collect calling more convenient and accessible for everyone involved.”
